I volunteered at E-Illuminate which is a social enterprise that empowers refugee communities that provides vocational teachers. I donated a certain amount of money to the organisation to help improve the facilities for both teachers and students so that they could enjoy a better and quality education in the future.

I also participated in an educational talk on sex education for the refugee teens as the organisation do not provide that certain type of education to extend their knowledge on the subject matter. We showed the importance of safe sex and the various types of diseases they could contract if one does not practice it. It is vital to place an emphasis on the significance of sex education to ensure the longevity of their livelihood.

By doing so, I was able to further improve my team-working and communication skills. It not only made me aware of the current issues pertaining the hardships of refugees but it also helped me view situations from a different perspective.
